Biography

Hayley has worked as an occupational therapist since graduating in 2002 and moved into the independent/private sector in 2014. She has worked within a variety of clinical specialities including trauma and orthopaedics, lower limb amputation, neurology, stroke services and brain injury rehabilitation. She has practised in services across acute health, in-patient rehabilitation and within the community, progressing into NHS leadership prior to her move into independent practice.

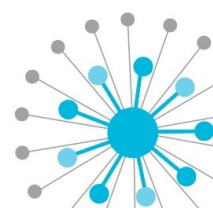

Hayley expanded her practice skills and began working as a case manager in 2018. In this role she works with a variety of clients, ranging from those requiring only remote/desktop input to those with complex needs requiring more detailed assessment, support, education and provision of equipment, adaptations, multidisciplinary input and liaison with multiple agencies.

She utilises her skills and experience when optimising a client's integration back into their lifestyle activities, whether at home, work or leisure. She uses a client and family focused, goal orientated approach and places a strong emphasis on supporting and educating her clients to take ownership of their rehabilitation wherever possible in order to maximise engagement and outcomes.

Hayley is experienced in working collaboratively with a wide interdisciplinary team including solicitors, insurers, clients, families, health professionals and local authorities. She produces comprehensive and informative reports, which thoroughly demonstrate her clinical reasoning and recommendations.

Hayley also has a passion for supporting the clinical and service development of other independent occupational therapists and was the training lead for business start up as part of the National Executive Committee of the Royal College of Occupational Therapists Specialist Section for Independent Practice (RCOT SS-IP). She also provides clinical supervision to independent OTs and leads a small team of associate clinicians.

Hayley continues to develop herself and her skills through ongoing learning including participating in formal training days, and undertaking professional reading and reflective practice. She also participates in and provides clinical supervision, mentorship and networking with other occupational therapists and rehabilitation professionals.
